

Normally people wouldn't compare the decisions that Washington made to decisions that were made during the Civil Rights movement, but you may be surprised at some of the similarities. Complete the chart with information about Washington's decision concerning the Whiskey Rebellion in 1794 and Eisenhower's decision concerning the integration of Central High School in 1957.

	Whiskey Rebellion	Integration of Central High
1. What was the issue causing citizen resistance?
2. What groups were resisting the change?
3. What groups were trying to make the change?
4. What reasons did individuals give for resisting the change?
5. What methods were used to resist the change?
6. Whose responsibility is it to make the big decision about what should happen?		