

WW11 Editorial:

In these rough times of hardships and bankruptcy it seems we have no light to guide us through peace. For our country's actions seem to be resulting into shocking positions for so many as Hitler begins to wear a path through Europe. We can't stand by and watch our country's ignorance as if a movie rather than the cruel reality of it all. A severe war is far from what we are seeking but yet is war at the moment a solution to avoid another prolonged conflict? I believe so for the truth is striking Europe head on but our fear from WW1 still resides in our country's becoming a danger to the future peace of Europe.

Hitler is taking lodging into the powerful positions of Germany and he is beginning to disregard the Treaty of Versailles yet our country takes no notice of his defiance. It's a grave image of not only the German people but Europe falling under his spell with an impression of an angel rather than a demon dwelling as dictator over Germany. These broken promises lay overlooked while Hitler's influence grows more and more yet fear of his control doesn't rise in question. We can only observe our country's unawareness of his dreadful deeds destroying the tranquility we long for.

People resist the thought of Hitler as a growing authority leaving the rest of us hopeless of a chance. It isn't time to remain in childish ignorance but begin a war that will end this dictator's reign. Germany is broken and weak but has found a drug to heal it's pain, Nazi power. Hitler changed his surroundings but not his thoughts when he entered his prison cell yet the German people yearned for a leader and he picked the right moment to manipulate Germany. We glimpse the maneuvering around our leaders but our voices are unheard. Europe needs to take the reigns and guide us toward a war that will discontinue concern for another bleak world war.

WW1 left Europe shattered in destruction and loss so the uneasiness of another piece of war prevents us to see Hitler's power as it is, too much. We dread another nightmare of combat but when it comes to fight we have to, there's no other choice. Hitler's influence has even manipulated the most knowledgeable leaders and seeing this we must pursue for another battle to end his control dominating Europe before it's too late. Hitler isn't just another challenger but a powerful man ready to disobey the treaties we have created for a peaceful world.
