

Visual Artist Preparation Guide

Your job is to create a visual illustration of your character's actions. Your drawing should include the character's name. It should also encourage the Senate Committee to sympathize with your character. In other words, you want to draw your character taking actions, but include their motives and why they feel this actions is important for American democracy and economic progress.

Before you draw your poster, answer these questions to guide your thinking:

1. List 2-3 images that might represent your character
2. List 2-3 symbols that the audience might associate with either your character or your character's enemies.
3. List slogans that might work well on your poster capture your character's ideas and actions in a short, memorable catchy way.
4. List colors that might show your character in a positive light.
5. List colors that might show your enemies in a negative light.
